

Jadwiga Linde-Usiekniewicz
Uniwersytet Warszawski

From Conflict Through Compromise to Collaboration: Semantics, Syntax And Information Structure in Natural Languages

Table of Contents

- I. Why The Encoding Perspective
- II. The Encoding Perspective Embodied: The Encoding Grammar
  - 2.1. Preliminaries
  - 2.2. The Architecture of The Encoding Grammar
  - 2.3. The Encoding Grammar And The Meaning $\leftrightarrow$ Text Model
  - 2.4. The Encoding Grammar And The Functional Discourse Grammar
- III. The Encoding Grammar And Semantics
  - 3.1. Semantics in Language and Semantics in Linguistics
  - 3.2. The Universality and Compositionality of Semantics
  - 3.3. The Semantic Representation
  - 3.4. The Semantic Structure
    - 3.4.1. Properties of Lexical Units
    - 3.4.2. Other Elements of Semantic Structure
    - 3.4.3. Semantic Structure Syntactically Expressed and Syntactic Structure
  - 3.5. Encoding Strategies
- IV. The Encoding Grammar And Theme-Rheme-Division
  - 4.1. Preliminaries
  - 4.2. A Brief Selective Typology of Approaches
  - 4.3. A Brief Selective Typology of Information Structure Elements
  - 4.4. Approaches and Their Results as Seen from the Encoding Perspective
  - 4.5. The Theme-Rheme Division Defined Within the Encoding Grammar
- V. The Encoding Grammar And Syntax
  - 5.1. The Elusive Nature of Syntax
  - 5.2. Structure vs. Representation and Deep vs. Surface Syntax
  - 5.3. Deep Syntax
  - 5.4. Surface Syntax